

This document presents reactions in front of guns in different countries.
In Canada, people consider weapons as a game.
In Mexico, they are afraid of guns and they run away.
In the USA, they are scared and they try to protect themselves with real weapons.

However, a child playing is always the same whatever the country: so, we believe it's parents' responsibility to protect and educate them!

People in different countries don't react the same way concerning guns: when weapons are very present as in America, people can become paranoid and react violently. In others countries where guns are very few, people are more relaxed and can make the difference between toys and real guns.
